Facts about the Government Offices

Organisation of the Government Offices

In 2021, the Government Offices comprised the Prime Minister's Office, eleven ministries and the Office for Administrative Affairs. The Government Offices is a single government agency headed by the Prime Minister. This means that the Prime Minister is both head of government and head of the Government Offices. During the year, Stefan Löfven stepped down as Prime Minister and Magdalena Andersson was elected as new Prime Minister by the Riksdag.

In the day-to-day work of the Government Offices, the Prime Minister is assisted by a state secretary at the Prime Minister's Office, the Permanent Secretary at the Government Offices and the Director-General for Legal Affairs at the Prime Minister's Office. The leadership of each ministry comprises one or more ministers, one of whom is head of ministry. Every minister is supported by state secretaries, political advisers, press secretaries and ministry officials. The Office for Administrative Affairs is headed by the Permanent Secretary.

Missions abroad – i.e. embassies, representations, delegations to international organisations such as the EU, the UN and the OECD, and career consulates – are separate authorities that are directly responsible in administrative terms to the Government Offices.

The Government appoints committees of inquiry and inquiry chairs. These are independent government agencies that report to the Government.

The Government Offices has approximately 4 700 employees, including some 200 political appointees. Those who are not politically appointed retain their posts regardless of the government in power. They are responsible for assisting the Government by preparing background material and developing proposals for government decision-making, and examining national and international issues. They also deal with issues related to the governance of government agencies, preparing data for the annual appropriation directions and following up agency activities. International negotiations, for example in the European Union, are also part of their work.

The Government Offices' internal development work

The Government Offices must be constantly developed to provide effective support to the Government and to be an attractive employer. Digitalisation of the Government Offices' core processes is a priority area.

Work to create the conditions for the digitalisation of the Government Offices' core processes has continued. Implementation of digital working methods for government business began during the year. Preparations were also made to develop a working method for consultations and other ways of handling comments. This development will contribute to better process efficiency, improved product quality and better interaction with external actors.

Work to coordinate common agency functions has continued during the year. In January, a joint Human Resources Division was set up for the entire Government Offices with the aim of taking charge of the government-wide employer policy. Additionally, various activities have been conducted to help establish the Government Offices' common communications function (which was launched in January 2020).

During the year, the ongoing pandemic has meant the continued need for adjustments to ensure operations that run smoothly and a safe workplace in light of the risk of infection, and also to promote a good working environment for working from home. The digital meeting forms have been developed to meet needs both internally and externally. At the same time, preparations have been made for a return to work onsite at the Government Offices.

Environmental management measures at the Government Offices continued and action to reduce the environmental impact is under way.

Introduction

Changes around the world mean ever increasing complexity and demands for faster processing times at the Government Offices. Matters are sometimes transferred between ministries and ministries can be reorganised. Review of the Government Offices' duties can also result in certain decisions and administrative business being transferred to other government agencies. Caution is therefore required when making comparisons over time and between ministries.

One example is the ministry reorganisation that took place in April 2019 following the government reshuffle in January that year. The biggest change was the establishment of the Ministry of Infrastructure, which took on areas of responsibility from the Ministry of Finance, the Ministry of the Environment and the Ministry of Enterprise and Innovation. As part of the ministry reorganisation, a number of policy issues were also moved between ministries, affecting the statistics in the appendix.

The Government Offices continuously reviews the internal division of duties between ministries and the Office for Administrative Affairs to ensure effective and uniform operational support to the Government. Since 1 January 2021, a joint Human Resources Division has supported the Government and the whole of the Government Offices in human resources issues. The new organisation provides all ministries with support and access to the collective human resources expertise in the organisation. The Human Resources Division is part of the Office for Administrative Affairs. Since 2020, a joint Communications Division has also been located at the Office for Administrative Affairs. The Ministry for Foreign Affairs' communications and human resources activities are not part of this organisation.

1. The legislative process

The Riksdag passes new legislation and legislative amendments. Most legislative proposals are initiated by the Government.

Before the Government presents a legislative proposal, an inquiry or a committee is often appointed with a remit to study a specific issue by gathering facts, analysing them and presenting proposals. The inquiry or committee receives instructions through terms of reference. In the course of the inquiry, it can prove necessary to extend or modify the remit. In that case, the Government can decide on supplementary terms of reference. These supplement the original terms of reference and generally also extend the duration of the inquiry. An inquiry or committee is usually appointed for a limited period of time.

A committee consists of a chair and one or more members. The committee can be assisted by advisers and experts. A committee with members from parties represented in the Riksdag is called a cross-party committee of inquiry. Inquiries can also be assigned to a single individual, an inquiry chair. An inquiry chair can also be assisted by advisers and experts, etc.

When the committee or the inquiry chair has completed its work, a final report containing proposals is presented to the Government. These reports are published regularly in the Swedish Government Official Reports series (SOU). Legislative proposals may also be studied and drawn up within the Government Offices. Such proposals are normally reported in ministry memorandums published regularly in the Ministry Publications Series (Ds).

Before the Government adopts a position, the document is circulated for comment to the relevant government agencies. Municipalities, interest groups and individuals are also given the opportunity to comment. Once this consultation process is complete, a government bill is drafted specifying the legislation proposed. In addition to the legislative proposal, the government bill includes an explanatory statement, comments on the proposal and a presentation of the views of the referral bodies. The Council on Legislation is often consulted through a proposal being referred to it for consideration before the bill is submitted to the Riksdag.

After being considered by the Riksdag, a government bill containing a legislative proposal leads to a decision by the Riksdag. If the Riksdag adopts the law, it is promulgated by the Government. The Act is then published on the Swedish Code of Statutes (SFS) website www.svenskforfattningssamling.se (in Swedish).

Sometimes, the Government outlines its position on a particular matter without submitting any legislative proposals to the Riksdag. Such reports are called written communications.

Government bills and written communications are published as decisions are taken. Read more about the legislative process on www.government.se.

All government bills and written communications are available on www.regeringen.se.

Acts and ordinances

A government bill containing a legislative proposal is considered by the Riksdag, resulting in a parliamentary decision. If passed by the Riksdag, the Government then promulgates and publishes the new act.

Ordinances are legal rules that the Government decides on. Ordinances regulate the activities of government agencies, for example. Acts and ordinances are published in the Swedish Code of Statutes (SFS). For more information, see www.svenskforfattningssamling.se.

The table below shows the number of acts and ordinances issued each year in SFS.

2. The budget process and agency governance

Work on the central government budget begins more than a year before the start of the relevant fiscal year. In December each year, the Ministry of Finance presents the Government with forecasts of how the national economy and public finances are likely to develop. In January, it continues to review and update the revenue and expenditure forecasts in the central government budget, government borrowing requirements, etc. At the same time, the other ministries revise the forecasts for their own expenditure areas and appropriations.

Next, the ministries submit consequence estimates to the Ministry of Finance for the coming three-year period. At the end of February, the government agencies submit their annual reports for the previous year and their budget documents for the coming three-year period. This material is analysed by the ministries.

Deliberations on the focus of the central government budget take place in March. Guidelines for economic policy and the central government budget for the coming years are set out in the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill, which is presented to the Riksdag in April. At the same time, the Government submits a central government annual report for the previous year.

The Spring Fiscal Policy Bill focuses on the guidelines and challenges for economic policy and budget policy over the coming years. Detailed proposals on new reforms are reported in the autumn Budget Bill. During the spring, meetings are held with the government agencies (agency dialogues) in which the political leadership and the agency leadership go through the agency's activities with both a retrospective and forward-looking perspective. The ministries also work on the reports that are submitted to the Riksdag for each expenditure area in the Budget Bill. During the spring and summer, the ministries prepare the amount of funds to be divided into individual appropriations.

The Government submits the Budget Bill to the Riksdag by 20 September. In an election year it must instead be submitted no later than three weeks after a vote has been conducted in the Riksdag confirming that the Prime Minister has sufficient support in the Riksdag, or three weeks after a new government has taken office if there has been a change of government.

The Budget Bill contains proposals on expenditure ceilings for central government expenditure. The expenditure ceiling for an individual budget year is decided three years in advance, which is why the proposal applies to the third year ahead. The Budget Bill contains proposals for revenue estimates for all budget revenue, proposals for preliminary expenditure limits for the 27 expenditure areas and proposals for the allocation of expenditure of appropriations in each expenditure area. In addition, proposals are submitted for preliminary expenditure limits and revenue estimates for the coming second and third budget years. The Budget Bill also reports the outcome of government activities in each expenditure area during the previous year as background material for the budget proposal.

In connection with the Spring Fiscal Policy Bill and the Budget Bill, the Government can submit proposed amendments to the central government budget. This is done in a spring amending budget or an autumn amending budget. If special grounds exist, government bills can also be submitted with amendments to the central government budget on other occasions as ‘additional amending budgets’.

While the Riksdag discusses the Budget Bill, the ministries begin drafting appropriation directions for the government agencies under their jurisdiction. The appropriation directions set out the financial powers that government agencies need for their activities and the objectives, reporting requirements and assignments that apply for the year. In November, the Riksdag decides on the budget revenue and the expenditure limits for all expenditure areas, and in December it decides on the amount and purpose of each appropriation in the relevant expenditure area. The Government subsequently decides on appropriation directions before the end of the year.

Summary of the central government budget, SEK billion

In 2021 the budget process involved the allocation of more than SEK 1 113 billion. The following tables show the outcome for the central government budget in recent years in terms of revenue and expenditure in current prices.

Agency governance

The government agencies that report to the Government are the Government's foremost tool for implementing the policies decided on by the Riksdag and the Government. The direction of the Government's agency governance is that it should be strategic, long-term, tailored to the agency's activities, holistic, coherent and trust-based.

In Sweden, we have organisationally independent government agencies with far-reaching delegated responsibility to independently determine how they are to fulfil their tasks. Under the Government Agencies Ordinance (2007:515), the agency management is accountable to the Government for the agency's activities. The agency's management is responsible for ensuring that the agency's activities are conducted efficiently and in accordance with applicable legislation and the obligations that follow from Sweden's membership of the EU, that they are reported in a reliable and fair way, and that the agency manages government funds prudently. The Ordinance also contains special provisions for the different forms of management. The Government is ultimately accountable to the Riksdag for everything that agencies do. The Ordinance expects good monitoring of the agencies' results and activities, and that the Government intervenes if it determines that the agencies are not managing their tasks appropriately.

The government agencies' instructions are the main policy document for the Government's long-term and strategic governance. An agency's instructions regulate the agency's tasks, management form and other circumstances specific to the agency. For some agencies, the legislation in an area of activity is also very important for how the agency designs and conducts its activities. Specific ordinances may also be important. Annual governance takes place through appropriation directions. There are also specific government decisions.

Another important governance tool for the Government is the appointment of directors-general and deputy directors-general, and of members of agency boards, committees and advisory councils.

An important part of agency governance is following up agencies' activities. One way this is done is through dialogue between representatives of the Government and the agency management.

Number of government agencies that report to the Government

The table below shows the number of government agencies on 31 December each year that belonged to the central government accounting organisation and that reported to the Government. The figures do not include Swedish missions abroad or committees.

4. Work at EU and international level

Missions abroad – Sweden’s embassies, consulates-general, etc. – represent the Government and the Government Offices around the world. Missions abroad strengthen the impact of the Government’s policies, safeguard Swedish interests abroad and provide residents of Sweden with consular assistance abroad.

Along with globalisation and Sweden’s membership of the EU, the Government Offices’ international and EU-related work has increased and is now extensive. All ministries are involved in EU-related work, which includes preparing Swedish positions, conducting negotiations, transposing EU directives into Swedish law, and monitoring infringement matters and cases before the European Court of Justice. Other examples of the ministries’ international work include representing Sweden in international negotiations, including in the UN system. The ministries also take part in bilateral meetings with other EU Member States, organise international conferences and inform the Riksdag about Sweden’s work in the EU and other international cooperation.

Explanatory memorandums on new EU proposals

Explanatory memorandums contain a summary of new proposals from the European Commission and set out the Swedish Government's views on them. The explanatory memorandums are submitted to the Riksdag's Secretariat of the Chamber and are then examined by the relevant parliamentary committee. The table below shows the number of explanatory memorandums submitted to the Secretariat of the Chamber by year. The statistics vary depending on the number of proposals the Commission presents.

5. External communication

Communication is an important part of Government Offices activities and includes:

- communicating the Government's policies and the work of the ministers;
- preparing replies to questions and interpellations from the Riksdag;
- preparing background material ahead of public appearances and speeches;
- replying to letters from the general public and questions from the media;
- organising and participating in seminars and other events; and
- consulting and maintaining dialogue with the business community, stakeholder organisations and the general public.

The Government Offices' digital channels

The Government Offices primarily tries to communicate digitally. The hub for communicating the activities of the Government and the Government Offices are the websites: www.regeringen.se and www.government.se. Here visitors can read up-to-date information, subscribe to news and view webcasts of press conferences. Government bills, written communications and Swedish Government Official Reports are also available on the websites.

The Government Offices uses social media to reach target audiences that do not normally visit www.regeringen.se or government.se, or to conduct a dialogue directly with target audiences. In addition to webcasts on regeringen.se, press conferences are often broadcast live on social media.

Letters from private individuals containing questions or proposals addressed to the Government normally receive a written reply. The table shows the number of replies sent by each ministry in recent years and recorded in the Government Offices case register.

The number of letters varies over time and is related to the number of questions the Government Offices receives from the public.

6. Special projects and programmes 2021

Special projects and programmes are activities of an administrative nature that are undertaken by the Government Offices. They are financed by funds from the Government Offices' appropriation for administrative operations or from some other appropriation at the Government's or Government Offices' disposal. This could be when:

- the Government allocates project funds;
- the activity constitutes a platform for debate and opinion formation;
- the activity builds on collaboration with other parts of the central government administration or with other stakeholders in society; or
- the projects are intended to run for a limited period of time.

Special projects and programmes are only carried out in response to special needs or conditions. For example, the activity may not naturally fall within any other agency's sphere of responsibility. The activity may also cut across multiple sectors of society and require decisions being regularly taken by the Government or an individual minister, which is difficult to express in a remit to agencies. The programmes and projects are often important supplements to other Government activities.

The list is a selection of projects and programmes carried out in 2021.

Employees by ministry

The following tables show the average number of employees by ministry. The column on the right shows the average proportion of women and men in each ministry in 2021.

In connection with government reshuffles and other organisational changes, certain activities are sometimes re-allocated to other ministries. Caution must therefore be taken when making comparisons over time.

Employees by staff category

The table below shows the median number of employees by staff category for each year.

	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021
Managers	513	510	506	513	518

'Employees' refers to the average number of employees, including staff on committees and staff posted abroad, who were in service for the whole or part of a month each year.

Leave of absence and sickness absence on a full-time basis have been deducted. Annual leave has not been deducted.

As the figures are medians and each subtotal is aggregated, this can mean that the sum of the parts does not match the aggregated total sum.

'Managers' refers to non-political senior officials and officials with personnel responsibility at the Government Offices.

'Case officers' refers to officials with no personnel responsibility. The category includes positions such as desk officer, deputy director and senior adviser.

'Specialists' refers to those employed under the Government Offices specialist agreement. They are mainly committee and inquiry staff, legal and special advisers, etc. employed on a fixed-term contract.

The report on 'political appointees' includes ministers, state secretaries and political advisers, including press secretaries.

'Support staff' refers to administrative officers, clerical officers, service staff, etc.

'Calculation as FTEs' (full-time equivalents) means that extent of employment has been taken into account. Accordingly, two employees working 50 per cent each are counted as one FTE.

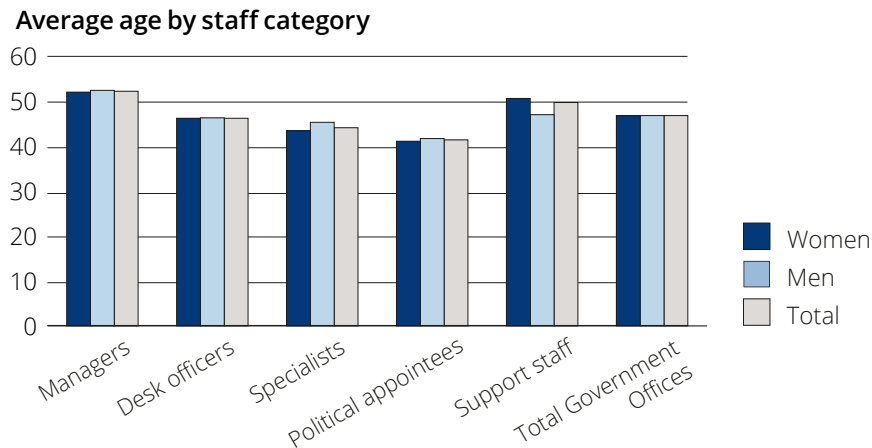

Proportion of women and men by staff category

This diagram shows the proportion of women and men by staff category.

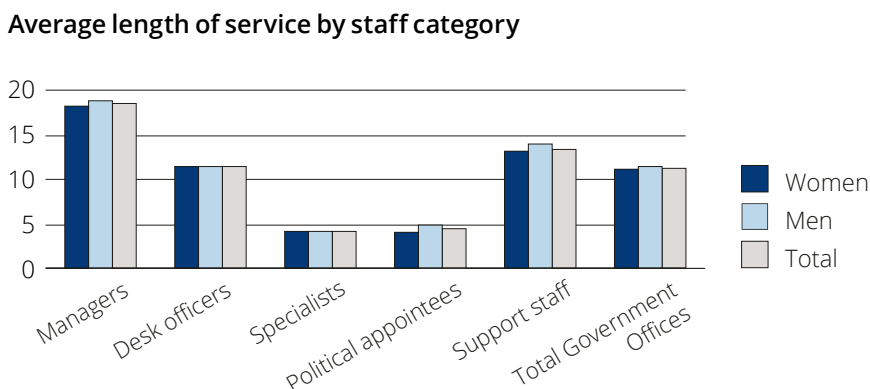

Average age and average length of service

The diagrams show average age and average length of service by staff category in 2021.

The average age of Government Offices employees was 47 in 2021.

The average length of service varies substantially between staff categories. The overall average length of service in the Government Offices is 11 years. The short length of service among specialists is due to their appointment, often to committees, on a fixed-term contract.

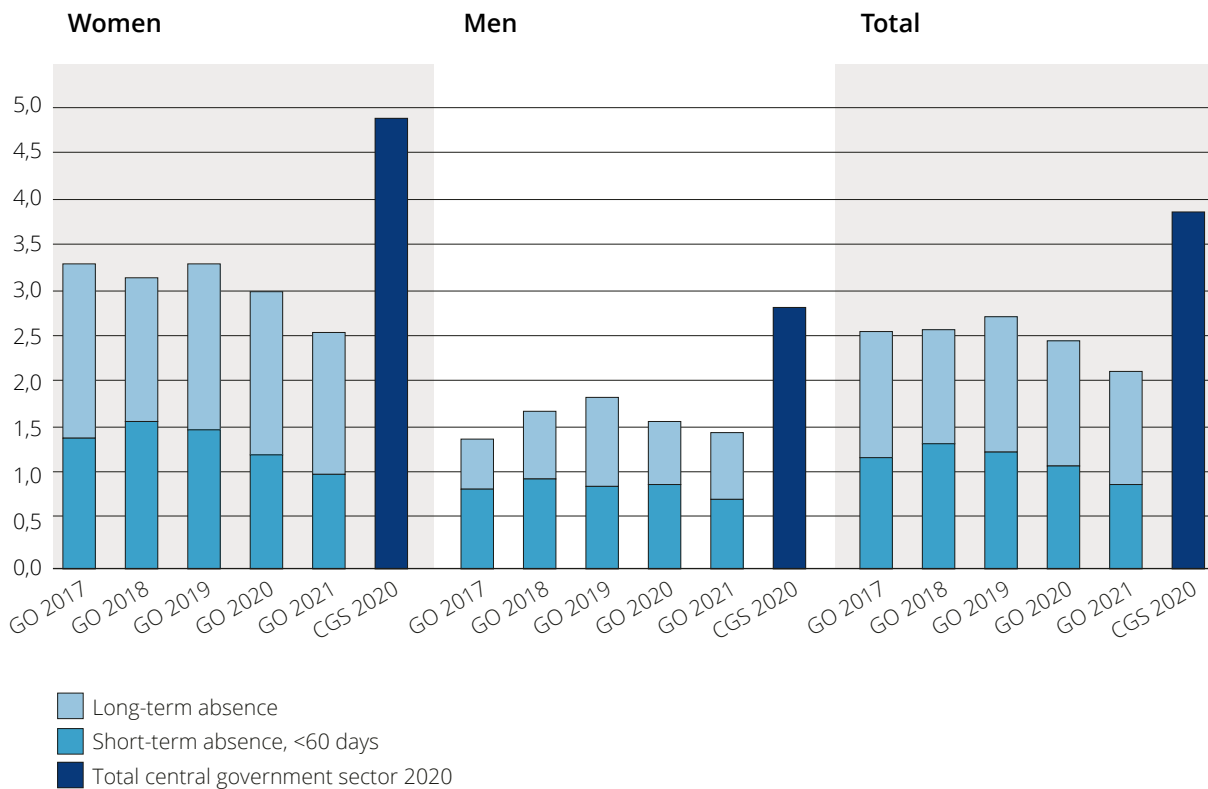

Staff turnover

As shown in the data on average length of service per staff category, many permanent employees have worked at the Government Offices for a long time. This is partly due to the opportunities available for moving to other positions at the Government Offices.

However, some Government Offices duties require specific professional experience from other parts of society. This is particularly true for those employed under the Government Offices specialist agreement, i.e. fixed-term contracts at ministries and on committees and inquiries. External staff mobility among ministry employees (excluding committee staff) was 13 per cent in 2021, and internal mobility between ministries was 4 per cent. In addition to this, officials change jobs within each ministry.

Sickness absence

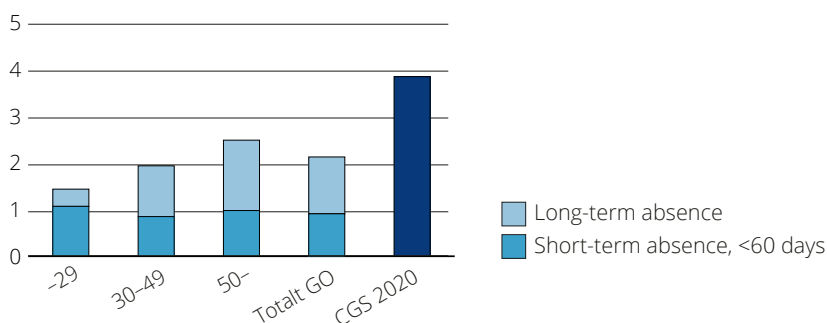

The sickness absence rate at the Government Offices was 2.1 per cent in 2021. Sickness absence was 2.5 per cent among women and 1.5 per cent among men in 2021. At the time of production of this Yearbook, the figures for the public sector as a whole for 2021 were not confirmed. For comparison, the 2020 rate was 3.9 per cent.

Sickness absence by age group

The diagram below shows that long-term absence in the Government Offices, as in society at large, increases with age. In total, 5 per cent of employees at the Government Offices are 29 years old or younger, 54 per cent are between 30 and 49, and 41 per cent are 50 or older.

Sickness absence by age group 2021

Parental leave and care of a sick child

Of the total number of working hours for women in the Government Offices in 2021, 3.4 per cent were parental leave and 0.4 per cent care of a sick child. The corresponding figures for men were 2.3 and 0.4 per cent, respectively.

All employees	0,4%	0,5%	0,4%	0,4%	0,4%
Women	0,4%	0,5%	0,4%	0,4%	0,4%
Men	0,4%	0,5%	0,4%	0,4%	0,4%

Equal pay

Every year, a pay survey is conducted in collaboration with the social partners to detect, remedy and prevent unjustified differences in pay and other employment terms between women and men at the Government Offices. The 2021 pay survey has not indicated any structural differences between men's and women's pay that need to be corrected.

Integration of climate and environment in the Government Offices' preparatory processes

Integrating climate and environment in the Government Offices' preparatory processes is an important tool for achieving the national environmental and climate goals adopted by the Riksdag. The aim of the Government Offices' 2017 environmental policy for integration of climate and environment in preparation processes is to ensure that, where relevant, consistent account is taken of the climate and environmental impact of government decisions. This applies to decisions on new proposals and new policies, and new committees of inquiry and remits to government agencies. This requires preparing relevant decision-making material that includes climate and environmental analyses. The work on integrating climate and environment is continuously monitored and developed. The Ministry of the Environment is responsible for overseeing the work and reporting to the Prime Minister each year. All ministry heads are responsible for the work in their ministry. The work must be developed so as to strengthen the central government's own work.

Activities with direct environmental impact (internal activities)

The Government Offices works to ensure that environmental consideration is a natural dimension of day-to-day work. Internal environmental work must be inclusive and open. The Government Offices is responsible for highlighting and reviewing any adverse environmental impacts of its activities and to work for their prevention. The Government Offices must continuously monitor, evaluate and improve its environment work and, to support its efforts, an environmental management system has been developed in accordance with environmental management standard ISO 14001. The aim of the environmental management system is to reduce the amount of waste from operational activities and the environmental impact of official travel by air. Purchasing and procurement are important tools. Future work will take account of experiences gained during the pandemic regarding issues such as reduced emissions from official travel.

Government Offices expenditure

The activities of the Government Offices, excluding transfers, are largely financed via the appropriation for administrative operations. Special activities and services are financed via programme appropriations. The tables below show the Government Offices' costs under the appropriation for administrative operations. Salaries and premises account for the bulk of the Government Offices' costs.

A more detailed account of the Government Offices' finances is available in the annual report of the Government Offices 2021, see www.government.se.
